Abstract: The emergence of social media has greatly enriched the way to accomplish knowledge sharing. Through the systematic analysis and in-depth discussion of relevant literature, this paper can provide reference ideas for the follow-up research of domestic knowledge sharing. Taking CNKI as the data source, it systematically reviews the literature on knowledge sharing under the social media environment from 2010 to 2019. By combing the research content, theoretical basis, research system and other aspects, this paper clarifies the research context, the characteristics, focuses of current field and differences of traditional research. On this basis, it points out that the future research will further develop in the fields of interdisciplinary integration, multi-level content research, diversified research objects, and diversified research methods.
